“Panic causes tunnel vision. Calm acceptance of danger allows us to more easily assess the situation and see the options”

Law Enforcement Negotiators across the country routinely train and prepare for all situations and to maintain control throughout. Yet, the tides turn when a peer, friend, family member, or another law enforcement officer is personally involved with the incident. Participants in this training will be presented with two case studies in which they will experience different problems involved with personal ties to an event and how to overcome them.
